The second day of the trial of Miss Helen Leonard drew a crowd to the Court of General Sessions, and only those who were early in attendance secured admission, the doors being closed as soon as the seats were filled. Miss Leonard is on trial for shooting Mrs. Sarah C. Smit., on June 15, at the office of Dr. Blondel, in East Nineteenth-st. The office of Dr. Blondel, in East Nineteenth-st. The prisoner was seated beside her counsel. Caroline Dinkelspiel testified that Miss Leonard had boarded with her from June 1 till the week before the shooting. She said that the defendant, who gave the name of Miss Harrington, had often acted in a peculiar manner. The boarders on the same floor complained that she walked the floor at night. Mrs. Dinkelspiel became afraid that she would take her own life, and finally talked about raising the price of board, and Miss Leonard then left the house. The witness considered the prisoner's actions irrational.

Miss Mary Gale, of No. 124 Lexington ave., testi-fied that Miss Leonard bearded at Miss Mary Gale, of No. 124 Lexington-ave, testified that Miss Leonard boarded at her house from the Saturday before the shooting until the day after the shooting. She gave the name of Mrs. Harrington. The prisoner was arrested in the house of the witness on June 16. When the arrest had been made Miss Leonard said: "I killed a woman yesterday. This woman and her husband have destroyed all that was good in my life. They have had spies dogging my steps."

I am a physician, and have made a special study of nervous and mental diseases. I examined the prisoner and found that she was insano and had been so for three months before the shooting, and still is so. I found that she was a person of good education, of good bringing up, and see an experience of good principles. She had been educated at a convent and had been a governess. About eight or ten months before the shooting she met a man named Callaghan, or as she calls him "Cal." He seduced her and after fiving with her for some time deserted her. At the time of this intimacy a crime was committed on her person under the influence of chloroform and, she says, without her knowledge or consent. Shortly before his desertion of her the man beat her and then she made him get down upon his knees and beg her pardon, or she says she voild have kined him. Then Callaghan said: "You must be crazy. I can have nothing more to do with you." He then left her. Miss Leonard had known of this man's going to Mrs. Smith's house, and after her desertion she saw in a stage a man whom she took to be Callaghan with a woman wearing a shawl such as had been promised her, whom she thought to be Mrs. Smith. Sno then came to the conclusion that the warder of the jail is paid by Callaghan to put poison in her food, and she has now sent out for her meals. Her insanly I believe to have been brought on by physical disease, resulting from her treatment and by her abandonment after seduction.

In answer to a question by Mr. McClelland, of the counsel for the defence, Dr. Spitzka said that the prisoner had shown him a photograph of Callaghan, which was shown in court. On the back of the photograph was written in the prisoner's hand-

"My God, my Lord, my all, Cal!"

"My Goo, my Lord, my an, car"
The witness was cross-examined by Assistant District-Attorney O'Byrne. He was asked the nature of the operation which he had alluded to as performed on Miss Leonard. The prisoner in a low voice said earnestly: "Don't tell that, doctor, don't tell it!" The witness explained that it was don't tell it? The witness explained that it was an operation to produce abortion.

Dr. William L. Hardy, the Tombs physician, testified that in his opinion hiss Leonard was insane. On cross-examination Colonel O'Byrne asked the witness whether he considered that an insane person ought to be at arge. The witness answered that he did not, as a rule.

The prosecuting officer showed a certificate furnished by Dr. Hardy on July 11, when an application was made for Miss Leonard's release from prison. The certificate said that Miss Leonard was prison. The certificate said that Miss Leonard was suffering from spitual tritation that might develop into mania if she were kept in iail. It said nothing of her insanity at that time. The witness did not think the two statements inconsistent.

Letters from Callaghan were produced. They began with: "My own darling," and were full of expressions of love. D. T. Ames, an expert in handwriting, was called for the defence. He identified certain letters shown him as in the handwriting of Miss Leonard. Two of them were threatening letters sent to Dr. Blondel and to Callaghan.

Dr. Blondel was recalled by the defence and cross examined. He was asked whether he had written to Miss Leonard before the shooting. He said that he had. He denied that the letter contained an improper proposal.

proper proposal.

Mrs. Diokelspiel was recalled and said that Miss Leonard had received the letter at her breakfasttable and after the other boarders had gene, had opened it. She read part of it and then burst out crying. She told Mrs. Dinkelspiel that the letter was from her doctor and that he had spoken of her undebtedness to him and her poverty, and suggested a way of paying the debt.

A SCALE COMPANY REORGANIZED.

Reports were circulated in Wall Street yesterday that the Howe Scale Company was in trouble, and was to wind up its affairs. At the office of the company, No. 325 Broadway, it was stated that similar reports had been published in the Boston papers for five weeks past, but were not true. There had been a quarrel in the company; some of the men had got in trouble on account of the bank and railroad failures in Vermont, the works being located at Rutland, but the company had since been reorganized with ample capital, and the business would go right along. Some of the new managers were in consultation at the New-York office.

From other sources it was learned that the company got behind on its payments to workmen, but raised money and paid off one month's wages to them on the last Saturday in September, and continued

CRASHING INTO A BARK. THE STEAMSHIP SALIER IN COLLISION.

COMPELLED TO RETURN TO PORT-THE BARK'S LIGHTS NOT VISIBLE.

The North German Lloyd steamship Salier, which sailed for Bremen on Wednesday with 15 cabin and 65 steerage passengers, returned to her dock vesterday at 3 o'clock. On her starboard side several plates were loosened. Off Fire Island she came into collision with the bark Sarah M. Smith, Captain Jones, in ballast, from Dunkirk for New-York. A Tribune reporter visited the Salier and obtained from Captain Weigang the following account:

"The Sailer passed the Hook at 4 p. m. Wednesday. There was a strong sea from the east and we the following account:

"The Sailer passed the Hook at 4 p. m. Wednesday. There was a strong sea from the east and we were making only 11 knots an hour against it. At 6:30 Fire Island was six miles to the north; the ship was pitching heavily, and as darkness came on a thick haze obscured everything. At 7 I began to blow the fog signal at intervals of thirty seconds, and put men on the lookout. At 9°clock there was a calm, and the slightest noise could be heard. We steamed on our course. Second Officer Von Rapaci, who was at the signal telegraph, on the lookout, saw a dark object on the water at 10:15. At his signal our belm was put hard a starboard, and our engines reversed at full speed, but it was too late to avoid a collision. We crashed into the starboard side of the other vessel, completely wrecking the forward part of her. I immediately lowered two boats, and soon had the entire crew, including a Newfoundland dog, on board the Sailer. There was no excitement among our passengers. I kept within sight of the bark all night. At darbreak the captain went on board to get some of his things. We then discovered why the bark had not sunk in the night. In the collision she had shipped her anchor on the port side, and being only in ballast the weight of it and the earlier had shipped her anchor in the port side, and being only in ballast the weight of it and the water. We decided that it was impossible to tow her in that condition, so we left her at 7:30 this morning and started for port. There were two red lights on the bark at the time of the collision, but they were not seen till the vessel turned her side to us. Her canvas was spread, but there being no wind! it flapped low upon the deck and the lights were behind it. If the sails had been collision, but they were not seen till the vessel turned her side to us. Her canvas was spread, but there being no wind it flapped low upon the deck and the lights were behind it. If the sails had been full orstanding out we could have seen them. I attribute the accident wholly to the carelessness of the crew of the bark. They made no sign whatever, though our lights were plainly to be seen and our whistle was almost continually blowing. I heard from some of the crew to-day that their captain was drunk, and the mate, who should have been on duty, was below."

DIVISIONS IN THE HEALTH DEPARTMENT. GENERAL SHALER'S PLAN OF REORGANIZATION-ADDING TO THE SALARY LIST.

The clerks in the Health Department exhibited much interest yesterday in the department estimates for 1884, which were sent to the Board of Estimates and Apportionment on Monday by the Health Commissioners. The estimates call for an increase of nearly $20,000 in the salary list, while no provision is made for the increase of the salaries of any of the present clerks. The salary estimate sentless experts alarnet mosilions when at present mentions several salaried positions which at present do not exist in the department. As a foreshadowing of the intentions of the commissioners, therefore, the estimate aroused much curiosity regarding the possible new appointments. It was noticed also that several existing bureaus of the department were to be made "divisions" of the Sanitary Bareau. The creation of these "divisions" is believed to be in accord with General Shaler's military ideas, and by adding new "divisions" the commissioners are able to create positions with high salaries attached. The First Division of the Sanitary Bureau according to the new estimates will be for "dwelling house and street inspection," in charge of the Sanitary Superintendent and Assistant Sanitary Superintendent, whose salaries remain unchanged. as several salaried positions which at present Sanitary Superintendent and Assistant Sanitary Superintendent, whose salaries remain unchanged. THE JEWISH DAY OF ATONEMENT. With differing degrees of severity the Jews throughout the world yesterday kept one of the most sole an of the holy days prescribed by Moses. It was the Your Kippurim, the Day of Atonement, most sole an of the holy days prescribed by Moses. It was the Your Kippurim, the Day of Atonement, on which the chosen people did penance for their nisideeds and the High Priest sent out the scape-goat in the desert burdened with the national sits. From the Mosaic time till the present the day has been religiously observed, although the manner of the observance has undergone many changes. As observed in New-York, however, it retained its most marked characteristic as a day of humiliation of the spirit and morification of the flish. It was a stringent fast day and the most pions of the sons and daughters of Jewry spent many of its hours in the synagogues and temples. Following an ancient custom, many worshippers of extreme orthodoxy stood in the synagogues wrapped in the shrouds in which they expect to be buried, and antiphonally with the rabbis and cantors chanted supplicatory prayers and prescribed portions of the Pentateuch and the prophetical books. The cadences, read from the accent marks of the Hebrew, were strangely weird and unlike anything that has been retained even in the primitive chants of the Christian Church. They were full of minor falls and Eastern inflections. At sundown the festival period, which began with the first day of the month Tisri, came to an end.

He left St. Louis with the consent of his mother and guardian, and on arriving in this city last Friday he went to the Spencer House, at Hester-st, and the Bowery. In corroboration of his story about the mines he exhibited a note written in pencil, of which the following is a copy:

DISCOURTESY ON HIS PART.

Mayor Edson yesterday requested the resignation of William Pitt Shearman, one of the Commissioners of Accounts. Mr. Shearman was appointed by Mayor Cooper, in 1879, to succeed Lindsay I. Howe. In the five years that he has been a Commissioner he has made frequent examinations of the Finance, Police, Public Works, Dock and other departments in which trands have recently been discovered, without ascertaining that anything was wrong. The accidental discovery of the frands in the Finance Department has made the Mayor uneasy as to what may yet be developed, under the careful examination of competent accountants, in other branches of the City Government. That is understood to be one of the reasons why he has requested Mr. Shearman to be the gross breach of official courtesy on the part of Mr. Shearman in furnishing copies of official documents for publication in advance of their submission to the Mayor, and in defiance of his orders to the contrary. This official information was furnished before it was submitted to the Mayor, notwithstanding that Mr. Shearman promised that he would not permit such a thing to be done.

The Mayor did not receive a reply from Mr. Shearman yesterday, and Mr. Shearman, as usual, left his office at an early hour and did not return. The Mayor has absolute power, under the charter, to remove at will a Commissioner of Accounts without giving any reason. It is probable that a successor to Mr. Shearman will be appointed in a day or two. His friends said yesterday that Mr. Shearman had been expecting to be removed for some time in consequence of his repeated failures to discover the frauds in the Finance and other departments. Lindsay I. Howe, John H. Mooney and several other persons are standing candidates for the place, but their chances are not believed to be good.

Mr. Shearman's saiary is $3,000, as he was appointed before the law was passed reducing the salary to $2,000. The new commissioner, however, will only receive $2,000. It is said th

Both officers were in the Finance Department attending to their usual work. Controller Grant said that he would consult with the Corporation Connected and then take the regular course prescribed by law for the removal of subordinates. That will require the presentation of charges and that each officer be allowed a hearing with representation by counsel. There was talk yesterday of the removal but it is not thought that such action will be taken until after the removal of Mesers. Jackson and
